3. Human Rights in the Extractive Industries: Conflicts and Regulatory Responses

International Conference, Friedrich-Alexander Universität, Erlangen-Nürnberg, House of Finance, Room Paris (E.21), 20.-22. July 2016

While extractive industries (mining, oil and gas) contribute significantly to the economy in many countries of the global South, their activities often have a considerable negative effect on the human rights of the local population and on domestic and international peace and stability. The conference „Human Rights in the Extractive Industries: Conflicts and Regulatory Responses“ provides an overview of the potential human rights violations arising in the context of the extractive industries and assesses different regulatory responses ranging from host and home country measures to international law and from binding rules to voluntary guidelines.

The conference is organised along three main themes: It begins with analyses of the main human rights challenges by looking at the rights of the local population and the impact of extractive industries on local and international conflicts. It then moves to a first set of regulatory responses at the home and host state level. Subsequently, international law developments and soft law instruments are discussed. The last part of the conference looks at a set of case studies which illustrate the challenges and responses discussed previously.

5. Inklusiver Arbeitsmarkt zwischen menschenrechtlichem Anspruch und vielfältigen Barrieren

HBS, Hamburg, 16. September 2016, 9:00 – 17:00h (kosten- und anmeldepflichtig)

Der Begriff Inklusion ist erst durch die UN-Behindertenrechtskonvention (UN-BRK) bekannt(er) geworden. Insbesondere für den Schulbereich wird seitdem viel darüber diskutiert. Wie jedoch ist es um die Umsetzung des Artikels 27 UN-BRK bestellt? Hier bekennen sich die Vertragsstaaten dazu, einen „inklusiven Arbeitsmarkt“ herzustellen. Hierauf konzentriert sich die Tagung. Thematisiert werden sowohl der menschenrechtliche Anspruch der Inklusion als auch vielfältige Barrieren, die sich seiner Durchsetzung in der Arbeitswelt entgegen stellen. Wie muss Arbeit, zumal Erwerbsarbeit, vor dem Hintergrund einer globalisierten Welt, die unverändert von Kapitalismus, Leistung, Konkurrenz und Exklusion geprägt ist, zukünftig verstanden, gestaltet, organisiert werden? Was bedeutet Inklusion in diesen Zusammenhängen, und was benötigen wir, um das zivilgesellschaftliche Potential dieses Begriffs in der Arbeitswelt zur Entfaltung zu bringen? Vorgestellt werden Geschichten und Konzepte, die schließlich die Frage aufwerfen: Wann kommt der inklusive Arbeitsmarkt?

Assistenz: Für die Veranstaltung werden Schrift-, Gebärdensprachdolmetschung und Leichte Sprache angeboten. Bitte nennen Sie uns bei der Anmeldung Ihren Assistenzbedarf.

Veranstaltungsort: Das Rauhe Haus, Wichern-Saal, Horner Weg 190, 22111 Hamburg

Teilnahmegebühr: 30 Euro, ermäßigt 10 Euro

Anmeldung: Bis zum 31.07.2016 an tagungsbuero@zedis-ev-hochschule-hh.de

6. Digital Surveillance and Cyber Spying: French-German Perspective

Paris, 23 September 2016 (Deadline 15 May 2016)

As part of the “French-German Doctoral Program in Comparative Law” and “HeiParisMax”, the University Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne is organizing a colloquium for a discussion of the subject: digital surveillance and cyber espionage from a French-German perspective.

The colloquium will take place on 23 September 2016 in Paris. We hope to gather junior researchers from various fields of public law, particularly those dealing with issues related to digital surveillance and cyber espionage. The colloquium is aimed at Ph.D. candidates, young scholars, post-docs, assistant professors and research assistants, regardless of their nationality. The working languages are German, English and French.

Issues about digital surveillance and cyber espionage are not new, and have already been discussed extensively in the literature, especially in recent years with respect to the fight against terrorism. Yet, this is a fast-evolving and dynamic field. Snowden’s leaks and the recent terrorist attacks in Paris and Brussels have given the subject added urgency and opened up dramatic, new lines of inquiry.

1) 1st Topic – French and German legal frameworks applicable to intelligence agencies and law-enforcement authorities in light of international and European law

This first topic constitutes an opportunity to investigate the various legal elements originating from German, French, European and International Law applicable to digital surveillance practices. A special focus will be given to the conditions surrounding the authorization of digital surveillance practices from a two-fold perspective: one internal to States and the European legal order, and one external to them.

2) 2nd Topic - Control of digital surveillance activities and cyber espionage in Germany and in France

With respect to this second topic, the various concrete modes of control of these activities in Germany and in France are to be discussed, whether already existing or envisaged, taking into account: the political and parliamentary modes of control, the administrative and constitutional mechanisms for oversight, as well as judicial control. National, territorial and temporal criteria that exert an influence on these modes of control could also be treated.

3) 3rd topic - The Franco-German and European cooperation in matters of intelligence and law-enforcement activities: What legal developments and solutions are possible?

The digital sector is an important part of the Franco-German cooperation. It includes the development of a cooperative project for storing and processing data collected in Europe ("the European cloud" or "European Internet"); data protection, via the creation of a database and a monitoring system targeting potential terrorists; and regulation of illegal content on the Internet, such as the glorification of terrorism or incitement of hatred and violence against a community. The Franco-German perspective will be contrasted against different elements of European law, such as the on-going (to date) negotiations on the Privacy Shield between the United States and the European Union or the European Passenger Name Record (PNR).

Special features of the event and participation premises:

Within the scope of the colloquium, a movie will be showcased on September 22nd. After the screening, a junior researcher will make a presentation about this theme in the cinema, and analyse the perception of digital monitoring and cyber spying in the civil society. A communication will be published after the colloquium on the website of the "Revue du droit allemand": <http://www.droit-allemand.org/>. Participation costs (transport, provisions and accommodation) will be covered by the organizers.

If you wish to participate, please send us a summary of your presentation (maximum 500 words), indicating the selected topic, along with your resume by May 15th 2016 to the following address: cyberdf2016@gmail.com. Should you have any further question, please contact us via our email address.

Academic advisory board:

Prof. Dr. David Capitant (Paris 1), Prof. Dr. Aurore Gaillet (Toulouse 1 Capitole), Prof. Dr. Catherine Haguenu-Moizard (Strasbourg), Prof. Dr. Anne Peters (Max-Planck Institute for comparative public law and international law).

Organizing committee:

Robin Caballero (Humboldt University of Berlin/Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne), Laurence Meyer (Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne) and Milan Tahraoui (Max-Planck Institute for comparative public law and international law/Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne).

3. Call for engaged listeners for the Max Planck Trialogue on the Law of Peace and War, Vol. I Self-defence against non-state actors

(Deadline: 3. October 2016)

The MPIL announces the Workshop “Self-defence against Non-state Actors” that will deal with the current state of the international law on self-defence. The military actions of the coalition of states against the ‘Islamic State’ in Syria make the debate on the current state of the law and on the policy implications and repercussions of the legal evolution extraordinarily timely. How should we interpret state practice – has it already given rise, in law, to a broader concept of self-defence, or is the traditional state centred view still good law? How can a new and broader notion of self-defence be reconciled with the traditional international law on attribution and state responsibility? Under which specific requirements should self-defence, if at all, be regarded as lawful and how can an abuse of an extended right to self-defence be prevented?

The workshop is part of the preparation of the first volume of the Max Planck Trialogues on the Law of Peace and War. The Max Planck Trialogues, published with Cambridge University Press, are a new format of academic publishing in which three scholars co-author a book and tackle one and the same topic of the ius contra bellum, ius in bello, or ius post bellum from their distinct perspectives. The authors are selected so as to represent different theoretical, geographical, and practical backgrounds and each of them contributes a chapter of 80 pages. The crucial idea of the Trialogues is to acknowledge the existing diversity of opinions and approaches in a field and to engage them with each other. Ultimately, the Trialogue shall lead to a book that provides the academic debate with new impulses.

The three authors of the first volume of the Max Planck Trialogues who will also participate in the workshop are: Mary Ellen O’Connell (University of Notre Dame, USA), Christian Tams (University of Glasgow, UK), and Dire Tladi (University of Pretoria, South Africa).

Following commentators and discussants have confirmed their participation: Orna Ben-Naftali (College of Management Academic Studies, Israel), Theodore Christakis (University Grenoble-Alpes, France), Larissa van den Herik (Leiden University, The Netherlands), Claus Kreß (Universität zu Köln, Germany), Inger Österdahl (Uppsala University, Sweden), Sir Michael Wood (UN International Law Commission, UK).

The workshop will begin on 4 November 2016 1.30 p.m. and end at 5 November 2016 at 1 p.m.

If you are interested in participating in the audience (not as a speaker), and thus contribute to the discussions, send an application with a statement of motivation explaining your interest and expertise or current research interest (maximum 1/2 page), and your cv including a list of up to three relevant publications to Dr. Christian Marxsen (marxsen@mpil.de).

We plan to publish a cluster of blogs accompanying the workshop, and engaged listeners are invited to submit a blog contribution, too.

The deadline for applications as engaged listeners is 3 October 2016.

Participation is free of charge, but at your own expense; the Max Planck Institute cannot contribute to your travel and accommodation costs. Admitted participants must secure their own accommodation and are advised to do this early.

3. Promotionsstellen am Interdisziplinären Graduiertenkolleg 1808: Ambiguität - Produktion und Rezeption

(keine Bewerbungsfrist angegeben)

DFG-Graduiertenkolleg seit dem 01.10.2013. Die Doktorandinnen und Doktoranden werden in einem interdisziplinären Forschungskontext intensiv fachlich betreut. Das strukturierte Betreuungsprogramm umfasst die projektorientierte Arbeit in kleinen Teams und Veranstaltungen des Gesamtkollegs einschließlich praxisorientierter Veranstaltungen. Ein Gastdozentenprogramm fördert die internationale Zusammenarbeit und den Austausch.

Ambiguität, verstanden als Doppel- oder Mehrdeutigkeit, ist ein charakteristisches Merkmal von Sprache und Kommunikation. Sie ist im spontanen Alltagsdiskurs genauso anzutreffen wie in komplexen Texten. Demgemäß ist Ambiguität zentral für die Linguistik und für alle Disziplinen, die sich mit sprachlichen Äußerungen befassen. Die Ansätze dieser Fächer sind jedoch noch nie zusammengeführt worden. Um zu verstehen, warum Kommunikation trotz oder sogar aufgrund von Mehrdeutigkeit gelingt, warum sie deshalb aber auch scheitern kann und welche Effekte durch Ambiguität ausgelöst werden, muss die isolierte Betrachtungsweise überwunden werden.

Es ist das Ziel des Graduiertenkollegs (GRK), zu zeigen, dass durch Kooperation der sprachbezogenen Fächer neue Erkenntnisse hinsichtlich der Produktion und Rezeption, der Auslösung und Auflösung von Ambiguität gewonnen werden können. Dieses Ziel wird in der Überzeugung verfolgt, dass Ambiguität als Querschnittsphänomen ein geeignetes Paradigma für neue Formen der Zusammenarbeit verschiedener sprachbezogener Disziplinen darstellt. Zugleich werden damit die Grundlagen für eine spätere Ausweitung der Fragestellung auf nichtsprachliche Zeichensysteme (Bild, Musik usw.) gelegt.

Das Forschungsprogramm verbindet die Untersuchung des sprachlichen Systems in der Linguistik mit der Untersuchung jener Diskurse, die den Gegenstand der anderen Disziplinen bilden. Dies führt zu innovativen Ansätzen: Aus linguistischer Perspektive führt die Erweiterung der Textgrundlage und die Berücksichtigung möglicher Strategien zu Herausforderungen hinsichtlich der Repräsentation von Ambiguität, aus der Sicht der anderen Fächer gilt es, die Rolle sprachlicher Strukturen für die Interpretation von Ambiguität nutzbar zu machen. Das Forschungsprogramm beruht auf der Annahme, dass die Produktion und Rezeption von Ambiguität ebenso wie ihr strategisches und nicht-strategisches Vorkommen nur verstanden werden können, wenn untersucht wird, wie diese Aspekte in den Prozessen der Ambiguitätsauslösung und -auflösung interagieren. Dies betrifft die Sprecher-Hörer-Interaktion ebenso wie langfristige Prozesse, etwa die strategische Reinterpretation kanonischer Texte.

4. Leibniz-Stipendienprogramm zur Entwicklung von Forschungsprojekten, „Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts“

(kein Bewerbungsfrist angegeben)

Im Rahmen des Leibniz-Projekts „Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts“ schreibt das Max Planck Institut für ausländisches öffentliches Recht und Völkerrecht in Heidelberg ab sofort Stipendien für Wissenschaftler aus dem In- und Ausland aus, die die Beantragung eines Drittmittelprojekts im Bereich des „Strukturwandels des öffentlichen Rechts“ beabsichtigen und die zur Erarbeitung des Projektantrags Zeit benötigen sowie den Austausch mit anderen Wissenschaftlern suchen, die zu ähnlichen Themen arbeiten. Eine thematische Nähe zu den bestehenden Institutsthemen und ein inhaltlicher Bezug zum Leibniz-Projekt „Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts“ sind daher ausdrücklich erwünscht. Den Wissenschaftlern soll die Möglichkeit gegeben werden, am Institut für drei bis sechs Monate eine Finanzierung zu erhalten, die es ihnen ermöglicht, sich voll auf die Ausarbeitung eines Drittmittelantrags zu konzentrieren. Zugleich werden die Einbettung in die anderen Institutsprojekte, die verschiedenen Diskussionsrunden und der Austausch mit den Mitarbeiterinnen und Mitarbeitern Foren bieten, die eigenen methodischen Ideen und Forschungsfragen mit anderen Wissenschaftlern zu diskutieren und so schon vor der Einreichung des Antrags eine Form des „peer review“ ermöglichen.

Zum Leibniz-Projekt „Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts“

Das von der DFG finanzierte Leibniz-Projekt „Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts“ entwickelt den konzeptionellen und methodischen Ansatz einer interdisziplinär, international und intradisziplinär orientierten, aber gleichwohl dogmatisch geerdeten Wissenschaft vom öffentlichen Recht fort. Ziel ist die konzeptionelle Aufarbeitung und Durchdringung des Strukturwandels des öffentlichen Rechts vor dem Hintergrund der am Institut schon bestehenden Projekte, die jeweils bereits Teilelemente dieser neuen Entwicklung reflektieren. Ausgangspunkt ist ein Verständnis des öffentlichen Rechts als ein Recht der politischen Herrschaft im nationalen, supranationalen und globalen Kontext. Die Ausübung politischer Herrschaft kann heute nicht mehr allein aus der Perspektive nationaler Rechtsordnung verstanden und konzeptualisiert werden; vielmehr teilen staatliche Institutionen das Strukturmerkmal der Ausübung öffentlicher Gewalt heute mit vielen supranationalen und internationalen Institutionen. Diese Phänomene sind in der doppelten Perspektive von Effektivität und Legitimität aufzuarbeiten. Neben dem Verständnis der Interdependenzen und Interaktionen zwischen verschiedenen Rechtsordnungen und Akteuren ist daher auch die Neuvermessung von Grundbegriffen der Rechtfertigung öffentlicher Gewalt notwendig.

Diese Entwicklung erfordert eine methodische und konzeptionelle Neuausrichtung der Wissenschaft vom öffentlichen Recht, wie sie etwa die Gründung der Internationalen Vereinigung für öffentliches Recht (International Society of Public Law) im Juni 2014 in Florenz reflektiert.

Die Neuausrichtung sollte drei Elemente beinhalten: eine methodische Europäisierung und Internationalisierung der Wissenschaft vom öffentlichen Recht, eine horizontale Öffnung des öffentlichen Rechts in vergleichender Perspektive sowohl gegenüber dem Recht anderer Staaten als auch gegenüber anderen Sub-Disziplinen (u.a. dem Privatrecht) und die Transformation der disziplinären Identität, um interdisziplinär und theoretisch informierte Forschung zum Strukturwandel des öffentlichen Rechts zu gewährleisten. Der methodische Schwerpunkt der Aufarbeitung europäisierter und internationalisierter öffentlicher Gewalt liegt dabei weiterhin auf der dogmatischen Rekonstruktion als spezifisch juristische Methode im öffentlichen Recht, um die Phänomene europäisierter und internationaler politischer Herrschaft durch dogmatische Begriffe und Prinzipien zugänglich zu machen. Ganz im Sinne der Empfehlungen des Wissenschaftsrates bedarf dieser für die deutsche öffentliche Rechtswissenschaft charakteristische Zugang aber angesichts der skizzierten Entwicklungen einer interdisziplinären, intradisziplinären und internationalen Einbettung.

10. Global Colleagues program from earlier-career, poverty-focused researchers in the Global South

(no deadline indicated)

Global Colleagues takes aim at some of the challenges facing scholars at less well-resourced universities and colleges in the Global South, such as lack of connections to international research networks and poor access to funding and publication opportunities.

Global Colleagues connects poverty-focused researchers from the Global South who are earlier in their careers with more senior academics doing related research at well-resourced universities in the Global South and North.

Through one-year, one-to-one partnerships, the "senior colleagues" provide their partners with support as they develop their research interests and career objectives and introduce them to global research networks. In return, senior colleagues get to learn about the methods and priorities of earlier career researchers in their field and to gain insight into diverse research environments.

The program already has commitments from more than three dozen prominent Senior Colleagues working at universities worldwide, including the University of Oxford, the University of Cape Town, Yale University, Delhi University, Goethe University Frankfurt, the University of Toronto, the University of Sao Paulo, and many others.

3. The Legacy of Armed Conflicts: Southern African and Comparative Perspectives

Pretoria, 28-29 July 2016

<https://www.giga-hamburg.de/en/event/the-legacy-of-armed-conflicts-southern-african-and-comparative-perspectives>

The GIGA German Institute of Global and Area Studies, in cooperation with the Centre for the Study of Governance Innovation (GovInn) at the University of Pretoria invites submissions for a two-day workshop on the legacy of armed conflicts: Southern African and comparative perspectives.

Achieving stable peace, building accountable state institutions and (re)establishing trust are core challenges in the aftermath of an armed conflict. While violent conflicts are disruptive, they also offer opportunities for political and social change. However, the passage from conflict to sustainable peace is a complicated process. Formal and informal processes taking place during the war and in its immediate aftermath can have profound long-term implications. Even in Southern Africa, which has been heralded as a 'success story' of peacebuilding, past wars continue to shape politics and societies in many ways.

This event will bring together scholars based in Southern Africa and GIGA researchers in order to reflect on the legacy of conflicts for sustainable peace. We are particularly interested in contributions that focus on one of the three following topics and that are either based on intra-regional (between African cases) or cross regional (between Africa and other regions) comparison or that apply broader theories or concepts to South African or other African cases.

Peace processes and long-term peacebuilding

Former armed actors in post-conflict societies

Violence and trust in the aftermath of conflict

Workshop format

The Workshop will feature lectures from two distinguished keynote speakers as well as a roundtable on the legacy of armed conflicts and apartheid in Southern Africa. Participants are invited to present their research in thematic parallel sessions.

Speakers

The first keynote lecture will be delivered by Prof. Timothy Sisk from the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the University of Denver. Prof. Sisk is a leading peace and conflict scholar. He has authored numerous books and articles on conflict resolution and peacebuilding in South Africa and in many other parts of the world, including Democratization in South Africa: The Elusive Social Contract (1995, Princeton University Press), From War to Democracy: Dilemmas of Peacebuilding (co-edited with Anna Jarstad, Cambridge University Press, 2008) and The Dilemmas of Statebuilding: Confronting the Contradictions of Postwar Peace Operations (co-edited with Roland Paris, Routledge, 2009).

Other confirmed speakers and panelists include Dr Sabine Kurtenbach, Senior Research Fellow at GIGA and an expert of the comparative study of violence in post conflict societies and Prof. Tim Murithi, Head of the Justice and Reconciliation in Africa Programme at the Institute for Justice and Reconciliation and author of, among others, Ethics of Peacebuilding (Edinburgh University Press, 2009) and The African Union: Pan-Africanism, Peacebuilding and Development (Ashgate, 2005).

Paper submission

We invite paper proposals that address one or several of the above mentioned themes. Please complete the Application Form on the workshop website (<https://www.giga-hamburg.de/en/event/the-legacy-of-armed-conflicts-southern-african-and-comparative-perspectives>), including an abstract of up to 250 words, and send it to legacyconflict@giga-hamburg.de, indicating Workshop 2016 in the subject heading. The submission deadline is 30 April 2016. Notification of acceptance will be sent out by 15 May. The deadline for full paper submission is 15 July.

Opportunities

The organizers will produce a synthesized report/publication, which will contain the insights gained, as well as papers presented at the event, and will be published in the GIGA journal Africa Spectrum, one of the leading area studies outlets of its kind. We, moreover, aim to establish a research network that will allow for an exchange amongst peers, and potentially open up the opportunity for more formal collaborative work between GIGA and the institutions represented by the workshop participants.

Reimbursement and travel grants

All participants are invited for a joint dinner on the first day of the Workshop. There is no participation fee, but note that travel and accommodation costs will not be covered. However, limited funding is available to provide five lump sum travel grants of 300 Euro each, which will be awarded competitively to scholars not based in the Gauteng area that will not receive support from their Institution. Please indicate your application for a travel grant in your submission email and application form.

Venue

Old College House, University of Pretoria, Hatfield Campus, Pretoria, South Africa.

4. 29th Helsinki Summer Seminar: Law, War & New Technology

Erik Castrén Institute of International Law and Human Rights, Helsinki, Finland, 22.-26.

August (Deadline: 30 June 2016)

Advances in science and technology throughout history have facilitated major transformations in warfare. The rapid development of information and communication technology over the past few decades is a case in point.

Precision guided munitions and remotely controlled aircraft have made military interventions more surgical yet more ubiquitous. Outer space and cyberspace have created new opportunities and vulnerabilities, thereby adding whole new dimensions to conflict.

At the same time, the international law framework dealing with the use of force has not changed much.

The 29th Helsinki Summer Seminar aims to offer a forum for discussing whether and how international law can still deliver on its civilising and humanising promise in the face of profoundly changing means of warfare.

9. Digital surveillance and cyber spying: French-German perspective

Paris, 23 September 2016

As part of the “French-German Doctoral Program in Comparative Law” and “HeiParisMax”, the University Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne is organizing a colloquium for a discussion of the subject: „Digital surveillance and cyber espionage from a French-German perspective“. The colloquium will take place on 23 September 2016 in Paris. We hope to gather junior researchers from various fields of public law, particularly those dealing with issues related to digital surveillance and cyber espionage. The colloquium is aimed at Ph.D. candidates, young scholars, post-docs, assistant professors and research assistants, regardless of their nationality. The working languages are German, English and French.

Issues about digital surveillance and cyber espionage are not new, and have already been discussed extensively in the literature, especially in recent years with respect to the fight against terrorism. Yet, this is a fast-evolving and dynamic field. Snowden’s leaks and the recent terrorist attacks in Paris and Brussels have given the subject added urgency and opened up dramatic, new lines of inquiry.

1) 1st Topic – French and German legal frameworks applicable to intelligence agencies and law-enforcement authorities in light of international and European law

This first topic constitutes an opportunity to investigate the various legal elements originating from German, French, European and International Law applicable to digital surveillance practices. A special focus will be given to the conditions surrounding the authorization of digital surveillance practices from a two-fold perspective: one internal to States and the European legal order, and one external to them.

2) 2nd Topic - Control of digital surveillance activities and cyber espionage in Germany and in France

With respect to this second topic, the various concrete modes of control of these activities in Germany and in France are to be discussed, whether already existing or envisaged, taking into account: the political and parliamentary modes of control, the administrative and constitutional mechanisms for oversight, as well as judicial control. National, territorial and temporal criteria that exert an influence on these modes of control could also be treated.

3) 3rd topic - The Franco-German and European cooperation in matters of intelligence and law-enforcement activities: What legal developments and solutions are possible?

The digital sector is an important part of the Franco-German cooperation. It includes the development of a cooperative project for storing and processing data collected in Europe (“the European cloud” or “European Internet”); data protection, via the creation of a database and a monitoring system targeting potential terrorists; and regulation of illegal content on the Internet, such as the glorification of terrorism or incitement of hatred and violence against a community. The Franco-German perspective will be contrasted against different elements of European law, such as the on-going (to date) negotiations on the Privacy Shield between the United States and the European Union or the European Passenger Name Record (PNR).

Special features of the event and participation premises:

Within the scope of the colloquium, a movie will be showcased on September 22nd. After the screening, a junior researcher will make a presentation about this theme in the cinema, and analyse the perception of digital monitoring and cyber spying in the civil society. A communication will be published after the colloquium on the website of the "Revue du droit allemand": <http://www.droit-allemand.org/>.

Participation costs (transport, provisions and accommodation) will be covered by the organizers. If you wish to participate, please send us a summary of your presentation (maximum 500 words), indicating the selected topic, along with your resume by May 15th 2016 to the following address: cyberdf2016@gmail.com. Should you have any further question, please contact us via our email address.

Academic advisory board:

Prof. Dr. David Capitant (Paris 1), Prof. Dr. Aurore Gaillet (Toulouse 1 Capitole), Prof. Dr. Catherine Haguenu-Moizard (Strasbourg), Prof. Dr. Anne Peters (Max-Planck Institute for comparative public law and international law).

Organizing committee:

Robin Caballero (Humboldt University of Berlin/Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne), Laurence Meyer (Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne) and Milan Tahraoui (Max-Planck Institute for comparative public law and international law/Paris 1 Panthéon-Sorbonne).
